THE TOBACCO REBATE BILL Sent to the President for His Signature-The

Washington, December 10.—Senator Plumb offered a resolution for the meeting of the senate daily at 10 o clock a. m., with a recess from 5:30 till 8, and asked for its immediate consideration. Mr. Cockrell-Let it be printed and lie over

Mr. Cockreil—Let it be printed and lie over. So ordered.

On motion of Mr. Aldrich, the house bill to authorize the payment of the drawback or rebate on tobacco, to correct the omission in the tariff bill, was taken up.

Mr. Sherman explained how it was that he had stated, when the question first came before the people—and stated very positively and honestly—that the omission of the drawback provision from the enrolled bill was intentional, ite had opposed, in conference, the allowance of the drawback because his experience was that drawbacks were always attended with fraud, and had preferred to give dealers in tobacco until the 1st of July to get rid of their old stocks. The conference committee had agreed to that view and it was subsequently, when he was not present, that the drawback provision had been agreed to. He thought it right now, however, that the bill should pass. The bill was passed, and it now goes to the president for his approval. The senate then, at 1:15 o'clock, resumed the consideration of the election bill.

Mr. Hoar, refering to the notice which he had given yesterday of a motion for a night session to continue the debate, said that on consultation with several senators he would not make that motion now. A lot of amendments made by the house to the senate bills for public buildings were taken up, some agreed to and others rejected, and on those latter a conference was asked.

Mr. Doiph offered a resolution, which went over till tomorrow, directing the committee on privileges and elections to inquire and report whether the right to vote for presidential electors, representatives in congress and executive and judicial officers of the state, or members of legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants in any state, being twenty-one years of age and a citizen of the United States, or in any way abridged, except twenty-one years of age and a citizen of the United States, or in any way sbridged, except for participation in rebellion or other crime.

Mr. Allison renewed the suggestion, made by him some days ago, for the reprint of the election bill, with the house provisions and senate provisions in parallel columns. The suggestion gave rise to a discussion as to what the senate bill really was, there having been already two varying editions of it printed. Finally the difficulty was got over. Order was made and the senate at 5:40 adjourned.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

An Attempt to Give Interest to It

Washington, December 10.—On motion of Mr. Henderson, of Illinois, J. W. Hathaway was elected postmaster of the house.

Mr. McKinley, of Ohio, stated that he had been directed by the committee on ways and means to report the resolution for the distribution of the president's annual message, and, upon his motion, the house resolved itself into a committee of the whole for its consideration. Though technically the resolution should have a committee of the whole for its consideration. Though technically the resolution should have been reported to the house, by inadvertence it was reported to the committee of the whole.

Mr. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, made a point of order against this procedure, but withdrew his point after explaining that he did not wish the precedent to be founded upon this action. In response to a question by Mr. Hooker, of Mississippi, Mr. McKinley stated that so much of the message as referred to the election bill was assigned to the select committee on election of president, vice president and members of congress.

Mr. Hooker thereupon expressed his desire to so amend the resolution as to send that portion of the message to the judiciary commit-

Big Fallurea in Tennessee.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., December 10.—[Special.] Much excitement was occasioned in business circles at Clarkesville, Montgomery county, this morning by the suspension of the Franklin bank. The suspension of this institution was quickly followed by the assignment of Kendrick, Pettus & Co., tobacoo dealers. Two or three hours later the Farmers and Merchants' National bank suspended payment. The Franklin bank was a private institution, with a capital stock of $52,000, paid up. The suspension of this bank was principally due to the recent failure of Henry Seabort, a prominent tobacco dealer in New York, who had done a large credit business with the bank. The liabilities and assets of the bank are not known, no schedule having yet been prepared by the officers. The president has published a letter stating that in his opinion the bank, by careful management, will be able to pay its indebtedness dollar for dollar.

THE CORN CROP,

Worth More Than It Has Been for Ten Years.

WASHINGTON, December 10.—The statistical returns of the agricultural department for December give the average farm prices of agricultural products by counties, which are conolidated in this office to obtain the accurate averages for the several states. The state agents obtain similar estimates, revise and consolidate and forward the the state averages. The department estimates, as published are made from these duplicate and independent sources of information, which are in remarkable agreement and may be relied upon as a true measure of the value of the crops in the

THE CROP WORTH MORE,

THE CROF WORTH MORE.

The present corn crop is worth more than the last, and the farmers will receive more for it. Unfortunately the districts of failure do not realize their portion of the advance in the average values. The average price, by the present returns, is 50.1 cents per bushel, against 28.3 cents for the crop of 1889, an increase of 77 per cent. It is the highest December price of the decade except that of 1881, the only year in which the final average of the condition was worse than that of the present season. The average price then rose to 65.6 cents and that of the following year was 48.4, with a better crop than the present. The next highest average is 44.4 in 1887, following three years of large crops and cheap corn. three years of large crops and cheap corn. The prices, therefore, depend upon the quantity grown in the year plus the reserves from the preceding years. The present average shows that small crops are a sure cure for low prices, and that the law of demand is still the property of the pr main factor in making prices and profits.
The prices in seven corn surplus states are:
Ohio, 51 cents; Indiana, 47; Illinois, 43; Iowa, 41; Missouri, 44; Kansas, 51; Nebraska, 48.
THE WHEAT CROP.

The average farm value of the wheat crop, as estimated, is 84 cents per bushel against 69.8 for 1889, an increase of 20 per cent on the price of last year. The value of wheat is affected by the harvests of other countries, as are cited by the narvests of other countries, as corn is not perceptibly, and, therefore, prices are not entirely governed by the size of the home-grown crop. For example, the crop of 1885, though smaller than the present one, broughtbut 77 cents in December, while the crop of 1882, aggregating over 500,000,000 bushels, the second largest ever grown, sold at 88 cents at the same date.

The price of oats has responded sharply to the pressure of the small crop and the increased demand because of the short cornerep. The average is 42.2 cents against 23 cents last year. It is the highest reported since 1881, an examination of the records shows that the abundance or scarcity of corn materially affects the value of this crop, the two grains being largely interphangeable in use.

THE BYE MARKET.

Bye, like oats, at 52.9 cents, is higher than since 1881, and the same is true of barley at 64.8: THE PRICE OF OATS

Buckwheat at 57.7 marks an advance over last year, but is lower than in 1888.

The deficiency in the potato crop has caused an advance in values in all sections of the country. The average is 77.7 ceuts, an increase of more than 30 per cent over the prices of the next two years.

tobacco than have prevailed since 1887. The average is reported at 7.7 cents per pound.
Hay, alone of all farm products, records a decline from last year. The present price is 87.74 per ton, and a slight falling off is due to the increased and of the increased.

THE COTTON RETURNS. The December returns to the department of The December returns to the department of agriculture of the value of cotton on the plantations are nearly the same as last year, the separate being quite as high as the average farm value of the previous crop, or 8.6 cents. As the average export price slightly exceeds 10 cents, this makes the cost of shipment, by wacon and railway or steamer, drayage, commissions, compressing and other expenses, nearly 15 cents per pound. The state averages are as follows: Virginia, 8.7 cents per pound; North Carolina, 8.7; South Carolina, 8.7; Gegrafa, 8.6; Florida, 8.6; Alahama, 8.6; Mississippi, 8.8; Louisiana, 8.8; Texas, 8.4; Arkansas, 8.5; Tennessee, 8.4.

This market soon developed weakness, and a decline followed the weaker closing atroad. Early months not only lost opening advance, but further declined. January options were notably weak, selling eighteen points below February. This is a high cost for carrying cotton.

The want of funds doubtless prevents our large cotton houses from buying in January and selling, in distant months to secure themselves. Comparatively, small port receipts excited no comment.

Secretary Windom's action today indicates very plainly that he does not care to apply more than $8,000,000 of the surplus at present to the purchase of four per cent bonds. The offerings today aggregated nearly $2,000,000, of which over $1,000,000 was at 123½, the rate at which bonds were purchased yesterday. The secretary, however, confined acceptances to $220,000 at 123, and $70,000 at 123, a total of $200,000. This makes the total purchases up to date $7,945,850, or within $2,450 of the $8,000,000 limit.

to date $7,985,850, or within $2,450 of the $8,000,000 limit.

Secretary Windom issued the following notice this afternoon:

The 4 per cent bonds accepted today by the secretary of the treasury complete the amount which he offered to purchase, and the bond redemptions will, therefore, for the present, be limited to the 4½ per cent loan, which the secretary will continue to redeem at par and interest at maturity. The secretary will also parghase, for the Union Pacific sinking fund, any first mortgage Pacific railroad bonds, which are prior lien to the subsidy banks, and pay therefor such prices as will realize 4 per cent per annum on the investment. The amount which will be purchased is limited for the present to $500,000.

The disbursements on account of the purchase this week of 4 per cents alone amount the present to $500,000.

The disbursements on account of the purchase this week of 4 per cents alone amount to $9,500,000, and the treasurer began the payments today. Most of the money goes to New York and Boston, although today's payment included $500,000 for Washington dealers. The amount of 45 per cent bonds redeemed today was $34,300, making a total to date of $6,665,850.

of the new measure forbids the selling, leasing, or mortgaging to Jews of any real estate of the empire. Hitherto such a regulation has applied only to Poland. Another clause provides that Jews shall be dispossessed of any real estate they may hold. In the past the Jewish merchants, after revived the commercial tax of the first real estate they may hold. In the past the Jewish merchants, after paying the commercial tax of the first guild for ten years, have been allowed to purchase real estate outside of the limits assigned to the Jewish populace. The new law cancels this privilege and compels them to sell all the real estate that they may have acquired. The Jewish artisans are also to be deprived of certain rights, and are to be kept strictly within the limits assigned to the Jewish population. Repressive measures will be taken against Jews infringing the new law, as well as against Christians who may be found abetting them.

It Will Be Time Enough to Name a President When the Occasion Is Reached. RICHMOND, Va., December 10.—[Special.]—General Fitzhugh Lee, who, since his retirement from the gubernatorial chair, has devoted his energies to the development of the business of the Rockoridge Company, is here tonight, in fine spirits and perfect health. "I am out of politics," said the genial ex-governor.

Being asked his preference for the presidential nomination, two years hence, he said:

"That is some distance off yet, and lithink Senator Daniel struck the idea when he said that it would be wisest to let the issues of the campaign be more clearly defined, and then select the man who best represents them, and to whom success is most certain to come."

The ex-governor was a great friend of Clereland when the latter was president, but he will not say now whether he favors him or not. Speaking of the chances of the senate passing the force bill, the general said: "It seems that the republican senators, under the lead of Hoar, are trying to force that obnoxious measure upon the country, notwithstanding the severe rebuke administered as the recent election. In their attempt to revive the republican corpse, they remind me of the Indians who have danced themselves to death in the west. Indeed, I think Senator Hoar and his party associates should now be called the political ghost dancers of the country."

And Will Spend a Million Dollars fon the World's Fair.

Houston, Tex., December 10.—[Special.]—When the world's fair convention was called to order this morning, there were 1,000 delegates present, representing every section of this great state from the Panhandle to the Gulf. In the assemblage were recognized the mayors of all the leading cities of the state, every business interest had its exponent, even the bogus newspaper man was on hand with a scheme to give Texas $1,000,000 worth of free advertising if the delegates wouldraise him a purse of $100. All the great dailes of the southwest which circulate most freely in Texas were represented on the floor, and in every particular the convention was a representative gathering.

Mayor Scherfeus, of Houston, called the meeting to order and addressed the convent on. After his address Mayor Ball, of Huntsville, nominated F. J. Hurby, of Fort Worth, temporary chalrman. This motion was seconded by every mayor and the chairman of each delegation, and he was manimously elected.

unanimously elected.

In his speech of acceptance, he alinded to the great possibilities of Texas, and asserted that Texas would, at the Columbian exposition in 1892, show the people of the world that Texas could raise more than cotton and hell.

D. D. Bryan, of Galveston, was elected per-manent secretary, and the usual committees were appointed.

The temporary organization was made permanent, and then the real work began. The Dallas delegation had come loaded. They wanted the state Masonic temple moved to Dallas, and they demanded that the home of the Texas world's fair convention be located there also. But the mowconvention be located there also. But the mowing under they got caused them to think a Dakota blizzard had struck them. Resolutions of every sort, kind and description were introduced, among which the most important was that the Texas legislature be memorialized to appropriate $1,000,000 for the purpose of having the vast industries of Texas represented.

The demand is that Texas have a separate building, and that the exhibit from the Lone Star state be made the grandest of all. The iron men, the lumber men, the cotton men and the sugar men swill all contribute liberally, and when the exhibit is made Texas will be foremost in the galay of states. During the winter months, callifower, strawberries, tomatoes, etc., will be shipped on to the great fair, and the world will be thus apprised of the great possibilities of Texas, which can raise in midwinter fruits, vegetables and flowers. The deep water projects will also be illustrated, as vessels can now enter any port in Texas drawing from fourteen to twonty feet of water.

The flight of the convention was over the location.

The fight of the convention was over the location of the permanent headquarters of the world's fair exhibit convention, and Houston was unanimously selected, Dallas being the only vote against it. A committee was appointed to advertise the state through legitimate papers, and by legitimate meshs, and the convention took a recess until

THE BOARD OF CONTROL

Of the World's Fair Appointed by President Palmer Yesterday.
CRICAGO, December 10.—This afternoon President Thomas W. Palmer, of the national world's fair commission, made public his appointments for the eight members of the board of control on behalf of the commission. They are as follows, the first two being provided for by a resolution of commission: President, Thomas W. Palmer, a republican of Michigan; vice chalman, J. A. McKenzie, a democratof Kentneky; commission at large, William Lindsay, a democrat of Kentucky; commissioner, E. B. Martindale, a republican of Indiana; commissioner, J. W. BOSTON'S CITY ELECTION

The Democrats Rebuking the Spirit of R ligious Bigotry. Boston, December 10 .- In the city ele dispatches from here last night an error wa made in the standing of the board of aldermen, owing to the improper classification of Alder-man-elect Farmer, of the tenth district, as republican. Farmer's election was on the straight democratic ticket, and makes the board eight democrats to four opposition.

board eight democrats to four opposition. An error was also made in the school vote, in that John P. Hilton was announced as elected, instead of James S. Murphy. Hilton had all the nominations except the democratic Murphy had only the democratic nomination, but was one of the three Roman Catholics pushed for election by Martin Brimmer, Rev. Phillips Brooks and other prominent people, and also endorsed by the Public School Union, and bitterly opposed by the anti-Catholic factions. These three, Murphy, James A. McDonald and William A. Dunn, were all elected on the democratic ticket by a large vote.

Dover, Tenn., December 10.—Judge A. H. Munford opened the circuit court yesterday. One of the most important cases on the civil trial docket is that of Henry Jackson vs. Rev. A. C. Stockard, of Waverly, Tenn., in which the plaintiff alleges that the affections of his wife have been enticed away from him, and that she has been seduced and influenced by the defendant to abandon the plaintiff. The plaintiff seeks to recover $20,000 damages. The defendant is a prominent minister in the Cumberland Presbyterian church, and it was while visiting the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, one or both of whom are members of his flock, it is charged, he committed the crime. The plaintiff is about seventy years of age and the defendant ten years his junior, while Mrs. Jackson is not far from fity.

THE COUNTRY CLEARLY WITH HIM

He Delivers a Vigorous Speech in the Ro tunds, in Which He Boldly Asserts the Justice of His Cause.

DUBLIN, Docember 10 .- Mr. Parnell arrived at Kingston early this morning. A body guard of 200 of his supporters, the Parnell leadership committee and other deputations, who had traveled from Dublin a special train, were on the pier to receive him. The members of Parnell's pay were loudly cheered as they came down the gang Timothy Healy, Manrice Healy and Patrick Joseph Kenney, opponents of Parnell, traveled in the same boat with the Parnelli-

As they came ashore, they were subjected to hostile demonstrations by the crowd on the pier, while there were shouts for Parnell mingled with cheers for Mrs. O'Shea. Parnell, accompanied by Campbell, his private secretary, was the last person to quit the boat. THE PEOPLE CHEER HIM.

As he proceeded to the waiting train, the crowd became enthusiastic in their demonstrations, and he was cheered again and again. A number of addresses were presented to him, in reply to which he expressed his thanks for the welcome that had been extended to him. He said that he did not fear the result of the fight he had undertaken. He had never led the Irish party wrong in the past, and would not do so in the future. The train then hauled out from the station, and after a short run arrived in Dublin, where a large crowd had assembled in and about the station to welcome sembled in and about the station to welcome Parnell. As soon as the train came to a stand-still, Timothy Healy hurriedly descended from the coach, entered a cab and drove away. He was recognized by the crowd, however, before he reached the cab, and was greeted with groans and shouts of "Chief Justice Healy."

Kenney. The crowd surrounded the cab, unharnessed the horse and then Parnell's enthusiastic admirers drew and then Parnell's enthusiastic admirers drew the cab through the dark streets until they reached Kenney's house, No. 15 Rutland square, east. As the cab was rolled along the streets the crowd followed, singing "God Save Ireland." The pace was quick, and gave active exercise to the dozen stalward police-men who followed the cabs. Upon his arrival at Kenney's house Mr. Parnell made a brief sch to the growd that had accompanied

The town clerk at Kingstown presented Mr. Parnell with an address, expressing admiration for his resolute resistance of the insolent dictation of Gladstone and assuring him of support in his "noble work." The address contained this declaration: "The people will not accept any home rule scheme not giving to the people the full control of the police and power to settle the land question."

In his speech, made upon his arrival at Kenney's house, to those who had escorted Kenney's house, to those who had escorted him, Mr. Parnell said he was confident that, with the youth of Ireland on his side, he would win, and that the common sense judgment of the Irish people would rally in the true path and refuse to allow the country to be dictated to by any man, however eminent.

and refuse to allow the country to be dictated to by any man, however eminent.

The Parnell leadership committee during the day presented Mr. Parnell with an address, emphasizing in the strongest manner the condemnation of the miserable and contemptible position the seceders had assumed. It said they had belied their own utterances, had been false to their pledges of fealty and their constituents, and had ignored the principles with which, under Parnell's guidance, they had achieved the only success over resulting to them from parliamentary action.

Mr. Parnell was in consultation with his supporters during the greater part of the day. At 7 o'clock in the evening he left Kenny's residence, and proceeded to the Mansion house where the procession was to form.

There the crush and the enthusiasm were so

There the crush and the enthusiasm were so great that Parnell and his companions found much difficulty in reaching the door. The crowd was so enormous, and the people were so tightly packed and wedged in together that the organizers of the parade found it a most laborious task to get the various societies and other bodies into line. Ultimately, when nearly an hour had been consumed in the work of forming the procession, a start was made amid the crash of a score of brass bands and the waving of blazing torches. Mr. Parnell rode in the lord mayor's carriage at the head of the line. Just as the procession started, a score of enthusiastic men quickly unharnessed the horses and took their places, dragging the carriage the whole way to the rotunda. Mr. Parnell received an ovation all along the route, and when the hall was reached he again experienced the greatest ovation all along the route, and when the hall was reached he again experienced the greatest difficulty in making his way to the entrance. The hall had been packed almost to suffocation for an hour previous to the arrival of the procession. When Mr. Parnell finally managed to get inside, he found it impossible to reach the platform in any way other than on the shoulders of the crowd, and he passed to the stage over the heads of the reporters, the audience pressing forward, sweeping aside the stewards and clambering upon the platform after him.

The cheering which began when he entered The cheering which began when he entered the hall was kept up for several minutes, during which Messrs Konsey and Campbell, the two Redmonds, and others, forced their way to the platform. When the tumult subsided, the lord mayor was installed in the chair and a vote of confidence in Mr. Parnell passed amid great enthusiasm.

MR. PARNELL'S SPEECH. There was another burst of cheering as Mr. arnell arose to address the audience. He Parnell arose to address the audience. He said:

I have been accused of absence from the field of battle, but I did not intend to plead tonight cither excuses or reasons, believing that you, having confidence in me, would not put me to such an ordeal, but take me for what you have known me to be, and for what, please God, I will prove myself to be in the face of Ireland and my fellow countrymen. [Loud cheers.]

There is need at the present crisis for discrimination and judgment against Irisbmen. Well, I invite them. It is said that I was absent from the light. Ah, gentlem n, when Wellington retired to his winter quarters within the lines at Torres Vedras, his officers didn't seek shelter around his neck. [Cheers.]

A COMPARISON CHALLENGE.

A COMPARISON CHALLENGE.

Tis casy to make excuses for secession and defection, but I tell you when the day come for measuring the amount of my shortcomings [cries of "Good"] and those of my opponents, the baiance will not be against me. [Shouts of "Down with the renegades."] I do not plead sickness, though God knows it was not the time when I was crippled in health and strength, and felt doubtful whether I would ever again come before you—not the time to confront me with a movement of mutiny [cries of "bravo];" stronger, more vindictive, disgraceful and cowardly [cries of "Healy'] than ever commander-in-chie was called upon to face. Ah, yes; they bide their time. They thought I was dead, and that they might play around my corpse, and divert tan Irish nation from the true issues involved, without reckoning with you and me, and without taking into account the undying resolution of our race that when they found a true man, they would stand by him, and he by them.

Now I suppose this is a great crisis. Who made it? [Cries of "Healy," "Sexton."] Is it me? [Cries of "Healy," "Sexton."] Is it me? [Cries of "No."] Is it you, or who? [Several voices "Old Glaistone, the hypocrite."] We shall see who did this deadly thing against our nation. We shall know where to affix the stain they sought to attach to me. I would only too willingly as a man whose heart is right, delight in a compromise, who is anxious to meet enemies and objections of the anxious, present my smitten check to the smiter, if by so doing I could prevent the other check from being smitten. I was anxious to assuage this trial, to give Ireland breathing time, to postpone the terrible issue. . WHO MADE THE CRISIS?

Why was I refused the opportunity? Why did Gladstone wait nine days after the verdict, and allow the Leinster meeting before hinting that my retention was dangerous? Had he but whispered in that my retirement was necessary I should have hastened to consult my comrades, and rescue them from the impossible position in which they placed themselves by the Leinster resolution."

He proceeded to refer cynically to Gladstone's talk of resigning. He reminded them that Gladstone, in 1886, carried the weight of home rule single-handed against every opposition. He said.

"Its because of this that this great statesman and unrivaled leader of his own people, asks you to surrender your independence and depose your leader. We are here today to say to Gladstone: "We respect you in your position; weacknowledge your immortality and the strength and power, exhibited by you on so many diverse and great battlefields, but we decline to fuse, with you; we decline to surrender to you the independence which has produced in you the unind in which you are today, and which—please God—will continue till it has produced the fruition of our hopes. [Cheers.] THE GRAND OLD MAN.

There is one distinction between the grand old man, for he is a grand old man, and his colleagues. Tis the distinction between the tail wagging the Tis the distinction between the tail wagging and head, and vice versa. (Laughter.) And the message that Ireland sends back to the grand old man, is this: "Resume your place as leader of your party, back up your legitimate authority, and when you have pit yourself in position or an independent leader, such as ours is, then, and not till then, will we allow our leader to the tail of the property with you muon these equal terms which alone treat with you upon these equal terms which a can assure a lasting, possible and permanent tlement." [Cheers.]

SARCASM INDULGED IN. Mr. Parnell made a sarcastic reference to the promises of the English money to start an anti-Parnell paper, and declared that when they measured the depth of the purses of Labouchere and Professor Stuart, they would be in a position to estimate the magnitude of their opponents' forces.

Mr. Parnell continued his speech by saying that if the movement against him was honest.

that if the movement against him was honest, he would yield immediately.
"But," he said, "it is a movement of hypocrisy, for the man whose home rule is skin deep, but whose hatred of Ireland is not skin deep. The main features of the movement are an aberration of judgment and invincible ignorance. It depends on one-sided testimony.

are an aberration of judgment and invincible ignorance. It depends on one-sided testimony.

"THE OTHER SIDE."

Do you think there is no other side. [Cheers.] I need not dwell on my defense; it will be known some day. [Prolonged cheering and waving of hats.] I could not come amongst you and look you in the face tonight unless I knew that there was another side to the question, and that you would be content to wait before deciding that I, unworthy as I am. [Cries of "no."] am too unworthy to walk with you even in sight of the promised land, which, please God, I will enter with you. [Cries of Parnell forever."]

LAND AND EVICTION QUESTIONS.

The remainder of Mr. Parnell's unusually vigorous speech was devoted to the land and eviction questions, and was a repetition of his former opinions. He then delivered a twenty minute speech at an overflow meeting in

At the conclusion of the speeches Parnell proceeded to the National Club, escorted by a large torch-light procession, headed by bands of music and cheered by the throng which lined the route.

Here, from a window, he made another speech, with which he closed the memorable day.

McCARTHY'S MANIFESTO.

The Seceders Give Their Reasons for LONDON, December 10.-The anti-Parnell members of the Irish parliamentary party have issued their promised manifesto to the Irish people. In this they say:

Feeling bound to protect our country's cause, at whatever personal sacrifice, we found ourselves under the sad necessity of terminating Parnell's leadership. It would have been easier to have left him undisturbed, but such a course would have left every man of us a traitor to his country. Parnell, disregarding our appeals to re-member his country, evinced an ill-judged determination to maintain his untenable position thus threatening to plunge Ireland into a con tion, thus threatening to plungerieland into a con-flict which may overwhelm her, and cause her present fair prospects to disappear forever. It is the duty of Irishmen now, irrespective of all consideration of feelings, either for Parnell or those differing from him, to adopt a course that will tend tojsave Iraland from destruction."

After detailing various reasons for their action, the signers of the manifesto add that whatever judgement Ireland may pass on the manifesto, her course hangs on the issue, and the signers will abide by that judgment, they hang the nation's savents. being the nation's servants.

THE CHARGES AGANST PARNELL. They enumerate charges against Parnell as

1. He speaks as if he had been the injured party

1. He speaks as if he had been the injured party follows:

1. He speaks as if he had been the injured party whereas he alone is responsible for the present deplorable situation.

2. He pledges himself to repel the charges in connection with the O'Shac case, but when the time came to do this he remained silent.

3. He does not hesitate to renounce and denounce the multitudes of English friends of Irish liberty as English wolves.

4. But the English wolves and the Irish bishops express the same opinion of Parnell, and he cannot mend matters by calling them nicknames.

5. The reminder of the Leinster re-election was the most ungenerous taunt ever uttered. The effort to sustain Parnell without playing Ireland false is made the cause of attack, whereas it ought to be a vindication.

The signers' position be one Ireland is dwelt upon at length. They set forth that Parnell's re-election was due to gratitude for past services, and his depositioe to the fact that if he continued as leader the struggle might as well have been abandoned.

he continued as leader the struggle linght as well have been abandoned.

PARNELL'S PERSONALITY DANGEROUS.
The manifesto says:
"He (Parnell) must be aware that his per-sonality obstructs the efforts for freedom, and sonality obstructs the efforts for freedom, and leaves Ircland with nothing for many years but the abominable system imposed by the present government. If he is re-elected the tory government will resume power, coercion receive a new lease and the struggle for home rule be lost to the living generation. The final question, which rests with the Irish nation, is 'Lose all for Farnell, or win all without him.' Home rule with Gladstone is safe.'

The singers say they refuse to abonder

Lose all for Parnell, or win all without him.' Home rule with Gladstone is safe,"

The signers say they refuse to abandon Gladstone for Parnell, or to insist on the liberal leaders revealing his plans for home rule, which action, they say, would be fooiishly to give an advantage to Ireland's enemies. The signers refuse to believe that Gladstone desired to dictate. He was bound to publish his conviction that the retention of Parnell in the leadership of the Irish party would wreck home rule. Why should a man of eighty-one waste the brief remnant of his life in a struggle foredoomed to failure?

The signers offered Parnell the opportunity of temporary retirement, with the view to his eventual reinstatement, but it never gave the faintest chance of sett ement. His fatal manifesto was an appeal to hatred between the people of Great Briesan and Ireland, and makes impossible for him hereafter to cooperate with the liberal party. The signers never deserted Parnell, but he them, and the honor of Ireland is safe in their hands through good or evil fortune.

The signers of the manifesto piedge themselves to remain an independent party, thus insuring the final victory for the Irish cause er auspices of the British democracy and the Irish people.

THE FINAL APPEAL.

The manifesto concludes thus:
Fellow-countrymen—The issue we submit to you is one upon which the fortunes of our country must depend. May God defend the right. ry must depend. May God defend the right.

There are forty-seven signatures attached to the manifesto, headed by that of Justin Parnell, in the presence of the other directors, read the articles of association under which the company was organized, and then ordered the sheriff to eject Bodkin. The latter made an ineffectual resistance. A desperate row occurred in the downstairs office between the sheriff's officers and the sub-editors. Sticks and stools were used as weapons, and the air was filled with flying missiles. Finally, after a sharp and fierce struggle, the sub-editors were put out of the building.

The news of the seizure of the paper created great excitement in Dublin, and a mob surrounded the office. Parnell later addressed the staff, the members of which promised to serve him during the remainder of the crisis.

It has been ascertained that one of the editors got a hint of Parnell's intention to seize the paper, and made arrangements to have today's edition printed at an earlier hour than usual The edition was on the point of being issued when Parnell appeared. He ordered the entire edition, which contained bitter attacks upon himself, destroyed. THE CHICAGO MONEY IN DOUBT.

THE CHICAGO MONEY IN DOURT.

CRICAGO, December 10.—The final disposition of the money subscribed for the Irish cause on the occasion of the late meeting to listen to the addresses by the Irish envoys then in this city, remains in doubt. The aggregate of the subscriptions and money realized from the sale of tickets was between $46,000 and $18,000. Less than half of this has been realized in cash, as most of the subscribers, in view of the split in the party, have thought it best to keep their money in their pockets till the air has cleared.

THE BLUE CREEK MINES.

The Trouble Proves to Have Been of Slight Character. BIRMINGHAM, Ala., December 10.—The trouble at Blue Creek coal mines last night was not serious. The flfty officers who rushed down here on a special train found little to do. Three members of the Mine Workers' Union had gone to Blue Creek to address the strikers, and urge them not to return to work. The men refused to leave when ordered to do so by the company's officers, and that seemed to have frightened the officers into believing that a riot was threatened. Four men, who had been making speeches to the strikers, were arrested and brought to this city. They were placed under bonds, on charges of trespaand enticing laborers. All is quiet at the

BLEEDING KANSAS

AGAIN LEADING THE COUNTRY INTO REVOLUTION,

The Great Interest Felt in the Proof the Farmers' Convention in Ocala.

The Successor to Ingalls.

TOPEKA, Kans., December 10.-[Special.]-No national gathering has been watched with deeper interest by the people of Kansas than the National Farmers' Alliance meeting recently held at Ocala, Fia.

Ordinarily such a meeting would have attracted very little astention from the average Kansas republican politician, but in the light of the recent politica upheaval, when five out of seven congre and three-fourths of the legislature went down efore the alliance tornado which swept over the Kansas prairies, is it to be wondered a that the men who have run the politics of this state for a quarter of a century on the prejudice and bloody-shirt issue should watchful of a force in the politics of today which has wiped out the boasted 82,000 republican majority? Such a campaign was never before witnessed in Kansas. Ordin arily the bloody shirt and sectionalism were the weapons used when members of the G. O. P. became unmanageable and threatened re would not work. The toilers upon the prairies of Kansas were reading and thinking—they were appealing to the party in power for relief and demanding that a few manufacturers of New England should not be protected at the expense of the men who created the wealth of this country.

A THINKING CAMPAIGN. It was a reading and thinking campaign. Men were studying the economic questions for themselves, and all the efforts to divide and distract the membership of the proved futile. The press of the state denounced the alliance as a outhern democratic scheme, tinctured with rebel democracy, and officered by ex-confed erates, but that did no good. Republican were appealed to, and urged to forsake the alliance and stand with the men who fought for a united country, but they declined the proffered advice and remained in alliance. Ex-union soldiers were shown that they were aiding and abetting the very men who had tried to destroy the union in the perilous days of '61 and '5, but they were not moved by prejudice or by the sway ing of the bloody shirt. They were in the alliace to stay and they did stay. Sixty thousand stayed and voted the alliance ticket.

REPUBLICAN DESPERATION. No effort was spared by the leaders of the republican party to break the force of the alliance when the campaign opened, but they were vain and fruitless. Thousands of republicans went into the alliance "to hold it level"-prevent any harm to their party—but nine out of ten remained and voted with their brethren. When the alliance was spreading over the state last March, the republican managers in the various county seats advised their trusted lieutenants in the several townships, who had always "brought up their sections" for conventions as requested, to go into the alliance and see that no republican go astray. The lieutentants generally acted upon the advice of the county bosses, but very few of them ever returned to vote the republican ticket Aside from the social attraction of the alliance, they found that they had been cided to join heart and hand with their neighbors and assist them in the great reform for the agricutural classes. THE FIGHT AGAINST INGALLS. The great fight made by the alliance was against John J. Iugalls. The speakers charged him with working and voting in the interest of Wall street gamblers and of keeping alive sectionalism to the exclusion of all questions in which the farmers of Kansas are interested. With the exception of a half dozen conventions, every candidate nominated by the people's party for the legislature stood upon an anti-Ingalls platform, and out of a total of 125 members the alliance elected ninety-one. The state senate holds over and is composed of forty senators, thirty-nine of whom are republicans. On joint manipulated by ring politicians, and they de-ecure the defeat of John J. Incalls WHO WILL SUCCEED HIM? Who will succeed Ingalls? is the question. Undoubtedly John F. Willits is the leading candidate. He has now forty-eight votes pledged to him. His election as national lecturer of the alliance has given him additional p estige. He led the fight in the recent contest, and was the people's candidate for governor, lacking only 8,000 votes of an election The machinery of the people's party is for him. Chairman Chase, of the committee, is confident of his election and believes he will be the caucus nominee. Willits is a farmer and has served one term in the state legislature as a republican. Five years ago he left the party and has since affiliated with the greenback ballot eighty-three elects, so the alliance has a clear majority of eight over all, enough to Judge W. A. Peffer, editor of The Kansas

Judge W. A. Peffer, editor of the Kansas Farmer, is also a candidate and has nineteen votes pledged to him for senator. He is probably the best posted man on the tariff in Kan-ably the deep posted man on the tariff in Kansas, and until one year ago was a protection republican. Recently he has renounced his former ideas, and is now a firm advocate of tariff reform.

Another active candidate for the senate is General John H. Rice, of Fort Scott, and until the present summer the editor of The Monitor, a leading republican newspaper. Rice til the present summer the editor of The Monitor, a leading republican newspaper. Rice came to Kansas at the close of the war from Atlanta, where he was engaged for several years in compiling and publishing a "Confederate States Geography." In 1888 he took an active part in the campaign, stumping the state for Harrison and Morton. At the close of the campaign he became a candidate for collector of internal revenue for the district of Kansas, but failed through the efforts of Senator Ingalls to get that position He at once renounced his republicanism, joined the alliance and was nominated as its candidate for the legislature on an anti-Ingalls platform. His son, W. M. Rice, was nominated as his competitor by the republicans and was as his competitor by the republicans and was elected by twenty-seven majority over the father. Rice's support will be insignif-cant because the people believe he is fighting elected by twenty-seven majority over the father. Rice's support will be insignif-cant because the people believe he is fighting Ingalls for personal reasons.

P. P. Elder, of Ottawa, and Professor Canfield, of the state university, have been mentioned for senator, but they will not be in Runaway Marriage Results Unhappily The Friends of the Husband Steal the Child from the Mother's People.

CARROLLTON, Ga., December 10 .- [Special.]-A rather sad case of kidnaping ocabout sixteen miles northwest of Carrollto Sunday night about midnight. THE STORY TOLD.

About seven years ago Charlie Bonnefield and Epsey Lewis were married. Their marriage proved not to be a happy one, and after a few months they were separated. An heir, a son, was born to them, and it is this boy that s exciting its denizens of the ninth district of Corroll county now.

After the separation of Charlie Bo and his wife, Charlie went to his father's, Zack Bonnefield, and his wife, Epsey, went to her father's, Bill Lewis. This child has been bone of contention between the Bonnefield family and the Lewis family for the last six years. The Lewis family had the child in ssion, and the Bonnefields took it with a writ of habeas corpus, and Judge Brown, the ordinary, awarded the child to its grandfather, Bill Lewis, who has kept its child since.

THE ATTEMPTED ABDUCTION. Sunday evening, about sundawn, some welve or fifteen men, among whom were a number of the Bonnefields, went to Lewis's and made an attempt to get the child, but Mrs. Lewis and her daughter, after a hard fight, gained the possession, but not till after nearly all their clothing had been torn from them. Mr. Bill Lewis and his son in the mean time came up with their gun and pistols. and there came very near being a regular war, Lewis got away with the child, but not to keep it very long.

THE CHILD TAKEN. So, about 11 o'clock Sunday night , about fifty men, well armed, went back to Lewis's house, burst open the door and took the child away Lewis's family and two more were there, but stood dumb in the face of shining pistols owie knives, shotguns, etc.

Bill Lewis came to Carrollton today and swore out warrants for about-twenty men for kidnaping, riot and assault. The defendants live just over the line in Randolph county,

The production of clothing for men appears at present in this country to be divided into three distinct trades—the ready-made—the regular merchant tailor—and what is known in the trade as the "Plymouth Rock" idea, so named from its originators, the with famous Plymouth Rock Pants Company of in this Boston - that is the cutting of clothes to each individual's measures but made in such quantities as to reduce the price to readymade basis. This is the latest and perhaps most popular plan, opening as it does to the masses the luxury of clothing cut to order at ready-made prices .---This is the result of

ATLANTA, GA., DECEMBER 11, 1890.

The Basis of Confidence.

Some of the big capitalists who have been squeezing the little fellows to death during the past few weeks agree with President Harrison that the country is enjoying exceptional prosperity.

Undoubtedly the natural conditions are favorable, but how about the artificial conditions? The volume of business is swelling, but there is not enough ready cash to carry it on. Crops and other products are ready to enter into consumption, but where is the money?

It is no use to say that there is plenty of money somewhere in the country. It is hoarded by a few, in the hands of speculative monopolists, and the people see very little of it. Practically there is hardly any cash in active circulation, and even if our entire currency, $22 per capita, changed hands briskly, still there would not be enough to meet the demands of business.

Under these circumstances the mer who have obtained absolute control of our financial system come to the front and say that we do not need more money, but more confidence. They say that with a feeling of confidence pervading business circles credit would be so good that dollars would no longer be needed between buyers and sellers.

But the trouble is that the basis of confidence is lacking. Without integrity and stability there can be no confidence. The men who control the money of the country are unscrupulous schemers, and they make our financial system unstable whenever it suits their purposes. They have shaped the tariff to work to their interests. When a man buys a manufactured article or builds a house it costs him fifteen per cent more than it did a few months ago, and he finds the money harder to get. The tariff is protecting stone and iron and wool, but it does not protect men. The majority of men are laborers, and no greater blow could be dealt them than to increase the cost of living without increasing wages.

The speculators and McKinlevites ar making everything unstable and unreliable. Why develop an industry? There is no telling when the government will smash it. Why toil hard to produce cotton in the south and grain in the west? Our masters, the plutocrats, will see to it that the crops shall be sacrificed.

Squeeze! That is the word The great generals of finance have given order, and it runs all along the line. Every conscientious speculator who is able to crowd somebody to the wall does it, and loots his pocket in a purely legitimate way. The people have been squeezed so often that they have no confidence in the squeezers, and the squeezers have no confidence in each

In this panicky state of affairs the Wall street jugglers who are responsible for it all calmly advise the people to do without cash, and exist on confidence. Having robbed the people of a goodly portion of their hard earnings, they now appeal to their victims to hold up their hands until the job of spoliation is completed!

Confidence: It is a word to conjure with. But it must have a basis in the shape of an honest tariff, and a financial system devised to meet the business wants of the people-a system providing for a stable and expansive currency that will not be controlled by a dozen Shylocks in great cities. Give us such a reform, and there will be no lack of confidence and cash. And we are going to have it. The issue is joined between the manhood of many and the cupidity of the few. The masses have it in their power to wrest this great republic from the merciless grip of the plutocrat classes, and they have made up their minds to do it at any cost. In a government of the people, for the people, and by the people, there should be no room for a plutocracry!

Come to the South!

We suggested some time ago that in all probability the causes that led to the failure of the Barings would ultimately operate for the benefit of this country, and especially for the benefit of this section. The troubles have been more serious and the losses greater than has been supposed, and the event, to use a homely Georgian phrase, is quite likely to cure the bulk of the investors of sucking eggs.

For several years there has been a craze in Great Britain over South American investments. Whatever speculation had the South American brand on it was sure of popularity among British investors. Worthas securities were eagerly sought after on all sides, and now the inevitable result has followed. It is estimated by those who ought to know that English capitalists have ost over $300,000,000 in South American speculations during the last five years. This money, according to Mr. Nathaniel Page, of Washington, who has just returned from England, is about equally divided between government and industrial investments, and the bulk of it is a total loss.

It is a very costly lesson for English capitalists to learn. There are plenty of people who would have given them a tip on profitable investments in the south without charge; but it requires a tremendous diff on the pocket book to convince the bullheaded Englishmen of the simplest fact But now that they are suffering in purse, and, therefore, in spirit, it is not likely that they can be induced to tamper with speculative investments in the South American wilderness.

A great many moneyed Englishmen, wiser than some of their countrymen, have already made investments in the United States, and not a few have placed their capital in southern enterprises. The result of these southern investments, which are all likely to prove profitable, will be to call the attention of other British investors to the wonderful field the south offers for the investment of capital.

The northern republican organs, by their campaign slanders and general lying, have done a great deal to keep American capital out of the south, and they have been so successful in this that there is plenty of room here for English capital. This section has barely entered on an era of industrial development that will eclipse anything the world has ever seen. To this picnic we invite our friends, the English capitalists.

We Must Not Go Backward. It would be a backward step if Georgia should now withdraw any part of her appropriations to our higher educational institutions.

The State university, the Technological school and the Girls' Industrial school are part and parcel of our educational system. Cripple them, and the common schools are injured. Our educational progress should keep pace with our material progress and development.

With our increasing population, our rising industries, and general prosperity, we should strengthen and liberally aid the great institutions of learning which are doing so much to bring the rising generation of Georgians to the front.

If we curtail our educational appropriations it will injure us abroad, and injure us still more at home. We simply cannot afford to do it. Misplaced economy is worse than no economy. When the duties and responsibilities of a great state like Georgia increase, we must make ourselves equal to the occasion, and leave nothing undone.

The legislature will find this a very serious matter. It will not do to treat it lightly or hastily. To block the cause of higher education is to retard our progress in every other direction.

A Drop in the Bucket.

The New York Press is a stalwart republican organ, but it sees dauger in the financial situation, and suggests that it is in the power of congress in our day to aid the

It is the opinion of The Press that Sherman's bill authorizing the national banks t issue notes up to the par value of the bonds deposited to secure them should be passed without delay. This would increase the circulation at least $14,000,000, and if the $55,000,000 now on deposit for the purpose of withdrawing it from circulation should b taken back, and used to buy more bonds on which to issue more notes the increase would run up to $69,000,000.

It is a tremendous concession from a lead ing republican paper to go even this far. but it is not far enough to do much good. Even taking the highest figures quoted, the would be little more than $1 per capita, whereas we need an increase of $30 or $40 per capita. Then the people are not satisfied with the national banking system, because it outlaws the farmers, by rejecting their lands as security for loans. A small increase of currency manipulated by these banks would not materially aid the farmers.

Still, it is a good sign to see the republicans waking up to the importance of the vital question of the hour.

Dr. Koch's Discovery.

It is the opinion of all physicians who take anything like a scientific view of their profession, that the world is on the eve of some very startling discoveries relating to the treatment of disease. The investigations that have been going forward in regard to the origin of disease, and the discoveries made by Pasteur and Koch have prepared the way for other investigators.

When Mr. Edison, to the confusion of other experimenters, demonstrated that the electric current can be divided for lighting purposes, he paved the way for other in vestigations and discoveries to an extent that was undreamed of twenty years ago. So, when Pasteur proceeded with his experiments, to be followed by Koch in a wider and more important field, it was inevitable that there should be a practical revolution in the theory and treatment of specific dis-

Dr. Koch has already discovered the bacillus in diphtheria and lockjaw, and has devised a remedy. These discoveries, howeve, are merely beginning, and it is more than probable that within the course of a few years the bacteriologists will have formulated remedies for all the more dangerous

Sir Morell MacKenzie holds to this opinion and it is undoubtedly the view of other leading physicians. The moment that Dr. Koch announced his discovery new possibilities were added to the science of medicine. What has already been accomplished is only the first step in a series of discoveries that will practically revolutionize the treatment of disease.

A Power in the Land.

Although Major McKinley is an extremely bitter partisan, he is essentially manly in thods. He does not hesitate to say, for instance, that if Governor David B. Hill had not gone into his district he would have been elected.

He says that up to the time that Governor Hill went to the assistance of Mr. Warwick, the democrats were not at all successful in getting their voters to turn out, while the republicans were holding large and enthusiastic meetings. After Governor Hill talked to them the change was very apparent.

Speaking of medical and surgical progress The New York Telegram says: "In a hospital he in New York a boy's defective leg is repaired by grafting into it the bone of a dog. In another hospital a portion of the brain of a cat is transferred to repair the injured brain of a dog. Trephining to remove abscesses of the brain or to relieve fractures of the skull, is an almost daily operation. So is laparotomy—to sew up wounds in the intes-tunes. Patches of healthy skin are grafted from one person to another to replace that which has been destroyed by flame or accident. Blood is pumped from the veins of the strong into those of the feeble and anæmic. If you lose a nose or a lip the surgeons can build you up a new one. LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Municipal Tax on Railroads EDITOR CONSTITUTION: A writer in The Even ing Journal of yesterday (Wednesday) evening, in a kindly reference to my remarks in advocacy of the bill to subject railroad property to taxation by municipal corporations, inadvertently treated the measure as having been introduced by myself. This is a credit to which I am not entitled, as m distinguished friend, Major Ryals, of Chatham, is the author of the bill. The fact that with Mr. Berner, of Monroe, I made some remarks in sunport of the bill doubtless led to the error as to its authorship. I intend no criticism of the writer of The Journal article, and would only make the corrne Journal article, and would only make the correction in the paper in which it appeared, but wish to do so the first opportunity.

When the bill was first introduced it impressed me as an admirable measure, and one in conformity to the uniformity of taxation required by our state constitution, and as being in the direction of equalizing the burden of taxation on property.

tion of equalizing the outuen of accasion on progerry.

While regarding this bill as a wise and equitable measure and strongly favoring it, I will take this occasion to say that I have no opposition to railroads, but on the contrary advocate treating them fairly and justly, but an convinced that adherence to the principle of justice to both corporations and individuals, with special privileges or exemptions to none, will greatly tend to the preyention of discontent and friction of the latter towards the former. Respectfully,

JOHN B. GOODWIN. December 10, 1890.

Many of these children have been sent by their parents to private schools, but there still remains a large number who are awaiting vacancies, principally in the primary grades.

GOSSIP OF A DAY.

The appointment of Rev. Walker Lewis to Trinity recalls a story Governor Northen told me on the day of his inauguration. Trinity's new minister is the son of a minister whose ome was in Hancock and who was known far and wide for his piety and his strength of character. He had a number of sons, six, I believe. Just how many of these went into ministry I do not now recall, but two notable exceptions were Hon. Bob Lewis, who represents Hancock in this legislature as he did in the last, and Colonel Sid Lewis, of The Sparta Ishmaelite. If there is any characteristic more prominent than all others in the make-up of Sid Lewis and Bob. it is argumentativeness. A phrenologist would find on the heads of each a very large and well-shaped bump in the place where the ability to "argify" makes its presence felt, and it is but natural that this is the case for they come by it naturally. It was their father's habit, so the story goes, to start an argument at the dinner table each day, the boys on one side of the table taking one side of the question at the question issue, those on the other opposing them. These arguments are described as having been deidedly heated at times, but the father was the peacemaker and would step in at the moment that a smoothing over was necessary.

The wisdom of the father is apparent in the success of the sons under consideration. Lewis, Trinity, is said to be one of the readiest and strongest pulpit orators in the Southern Methodist church : Bob Lewis is one of the strongest debaters on the floor of the Georgia house and one of the best members of the legislature, and while Sid Lewis does most of his arguing with an editorial pencil, he is equally ready to do it

Many are the inquiries after the health of Senator Brown. When he went to Kansas he becam a red-hot republican, and stuck to that until this people's movement came up. Then he was beaten by his son for the legislature, and now he is a candidate for the United States senate. His career, you see, has been one of nany changes.

GIFTS FOR WOMEN.

What Men May Give to Their Fair Com panions for Christmas Presents,

From The New York Sun.

Nearly every clever woman in society, whos charming face, winning manners, and witty talk ave won for her a large circle of masculine admirers, is endowed with what might seem an al-most divine intuition for gauging the exact depth and fervor of friendship each imanly heart holds ever simple they may be at first, bespeak a liking that at her pleasure or discretion might be kindled into a sus-picious little flame. "Those men," said a demure little person who didn't look at all as if she was old or sophisticated enough to understand such matters, "begin by giving one cunning scarf pins, milky pearls set alone on a slender stem of gold, or delicately carred moonstones crowned with a row of twink-ling diamond points. Then he warms to an ex-quisitely fretted gold pin for the hair, and, it nothing is said, he next ventures to offer a gold onbonniere, the top of which is likely a tiny mir ature of a girl's head, framed in small stones. her glossy locks and noticed how she wore gold pins thrust among the wavy folds; also has he ob-served that her mouth is an uncommonly nice one and that she eats comfits, and incidentally he bought the miniature because he saw a likeness t

"The platonically friendly man? Oh, he expresses his calm admiration for one by gifts of another type. He rarely thinks of jewelry, and I am glad of it, for even simple ornaments a wellored girl dislikes to accept or refuse, and there are many other little remembrances she would more gladly welcome. For instance, leather is an out-tet for my men friends' generosity, and among other things I have a collection of beautiful card cases various persons have given me. They are made of finest perfumed and tinted skins, lined with silk, provided with silver pencils, sometimes a tiny watch, and beside a pocket for cards, one for change and little slips to pull out on which are daintily etched calendars for the year. My last acquisition came from Paris. It is gray green veined leather, highly polished and dotted over with tiny bright silver fleur-de-lis. To match it

They are three square, gilt-edged volumes, bound in leather as fine and sweet smelling as rose leaves. On the covers my crest and monogram are deeply stamped in gilt and on the title backs are written respectingit and on the cross occasions written respectively accounts, engagements and addresses. Inside the one for accounts is comfortably ruled off and noted, so that one knows where those puzzling lists of figures should go. Engagements has stated pages on which one jots down memorauda of events to come, addresses has the leaves alpha-bettically arranged, and the three books are held together by a little strap and catch button like those on books of prayer and hymnals. A gift of that kind is in constant use, and one is always re-minded of and pleasantly grateful to the giver.

"Another pretty eather poylfor a woman is traveling inkstand. They come in numberless de vices, and nothing is more unique than a minia-ture Gladstone bag, perfect in detail, even to a bit of a silver plate, on which one's initials can be traced; and by pressing a knob it flies open to re-

"Then if you are going on a journey he can give you a lovely suede leather writing portfolio or one leather-bound books, on the backs, stamped in black, the title Diary and her name. A screw pencil slips into loops, and on the gift-edged leaves

For a journey by rail he will perhaps buy a cut-glass tumbler, glass being cleaner than a metal cup, set in a leather case, and marked with her name and address, and for a sea voyage it's no impropriety for a friend to beg her acceptance of a flat-glass leather-covered bottle filled with a clear, golden fluid that for conventionality's sake let us call the traveier's companion."

THE LUNATIC ASYLUM.

"Aye, there's the rub."

There was a hitch on the following section:
"For support and maintenance of the lunatic asylum, $1:0,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary—to be expended only when directed by the board of trust es, and the governor is authorized to make monthly an advance to cover the cost of supplies and incidental expenses of said asylum, provided, that the governor shall require of the superintendent and resident physician an itemized statement monthly of all the expenditures, which statement shall be approved by a quorum of the board of trustees; and, provided further, that no part of this appropriation shall be used for building purposes, repair of buildings, or otherwise than the support of said asylum."

Mr. Hand, of Baker, chairman of the committee on the lunatic asylum, offered an amendment making the amount $100,000.

A red-hot debate followed which was participated in by a dozen members.

Mr. Chappell, of Laurens, made a terrific exposition of what he deemed outrageous management of the asylum. Said he:

"The money that we give those poor unfortunates never gets to them. It is gobbled up by the officers in charge. I am in favor of making the asylum comfortable, but I am opposed to embellishments. The flower gardens and playing fountains there are luxuries that Georgia cannot afford. They are flower yards that are drawing butterflies from other states, too. other states, too. I understand that a crazy person in Alabama need only come to Georgia and live a week and will be taken in the asylum." He continued his abuse of the management of the asylum severely.

But he was answered. Mr. Whitfield, of Baldwin, took the floor and gave some powerful arguments in behalf of the asylum. So did Mr. Hill, of Meriwether; Mr. Huff, of Bibb, and Seay, of Rome, and Berner, of Monroe.

Berner, of Monroe.

The amendment was opposed by Mr. Humphreys, of Brooks, who, like Mr. Chappell, indulged in some hard thrusts at the managenent of this institution.

The amendment was lost, and the asylum gets $190,000.

The Session Prolonged.

Mr. Calvin's resolution prolonged.

Mr. Calvin's resolution prolonging the session of the general assembly was passed by both the house and senate yesterday.

The resolution reads as follows:

There is much for the legislators to do yet. If they had agreed to adjourn after the forty If they had agreed to adjourn after the forty days had expired they would have gone home next Saturday. As it is, there is not much counting when they can get away from the captol.

The bill introduced by Mr. Gilbert, of Muscogee, for the incorporation of the North Highlands Railway Company, of Columbus, was the chief business of the house in the night session. This bill has caused much interest during its course through the committee room, having met with much antagonism by lawyers who came to argue for another street railway company of Columbus, asking that the bill be killed because the North Highlands railway would run parallel with their line three blocks.

The same fight came up last night when Mr. |Clifton, of Chatham offered an amendment providing that the North Highlands road should not run parallel to any other line already in operation.

Mr. Clifton spoke in favor of his amendment, stating that a company from Savannah had gone to Columbus and constructed the line now in operation, and in simple justice they ought not to be injured by a parallel line.

He said he had come to the members of the house with the bill, asking for nothing under the sun, but for the, simple right of home rule. It was the custom of the house to grant this right to local sections, of the honse to grant this right to local sections, and he appealed to the honse for the same. He asked why should the granting of a charter to one street railway bottle up the privileges and hinder the progress of a growing city like Columbus by keeping down all other compa-

"I regard those resolutions of more im-portance than any which have preceded them in the general assembly. You know," said Senator Culver, "we are in the midst of a great financial crisis, the end and conse-quences of which we cannot foresee. We need relief, which cannot be afforded by state legislation. The legislature can only enact legislation. The legislature can only enact economic measures. The needed relief can only come through federal legislation, by in-creasing the circulation of currency and tariff reform. Senator Cabaniss's resolutions seek to accomplish these reforms by calling upon our representatives and senators to use earnest

NASHVILLE, Tenn., December 10.-[Special] Arthur S. Colyar, Jr., was taken to Manches ter, Tenn., tonight on a warrant sworn out by O. B. Ferguson, of Tullahoma. Ferguson charges that Colyar hired a horse and bugg from him, and failed to return it, but exchanged horses with another man and sold the ani Sal secured in the exchange. This occurred several months ago and immediately afterwards Colvar went south, and has been going under the name of John G. Carlisle, Jr. THE STORY HE TELLS.

He returned to this city Sunday and gave himself up to detectives, who have been looking for him. Colyar is not phased by the rouble in which he finds himself. He was seen at the depot tonight by your correspon ent, and talked freely of his recent escapades in the City of Mexico, where he passed off as John G. Carlisle, Jr., and sec Frisbie's endorsement to a draft for $10,000. Colyar says he had no intention of doing wrong when he went to Mexico, but that when ap proached by a customs official he jokingly gave the name of John G. Carlisle, Jr. "I went into Mexico on a public coach," said he "but went out in the private car of J. A. Robertson, of the Monterey and Mexico Gulf railroad. A newspaper published that John G. Carlisle, Jr., was on the way to the city, and a delegation met me at the depot." THE FRISBIE INCIDENT.

Colyar said he was given much attention, and spoke of General Frisbie as "secretary of the state and father-in-law of the president of Mexico."

This gentleman, he said, called on him and invited him to be his guest, which invitation he accepted. When he got short of money he did not hisitate to mention the fact, and was told he could get all he wanted. He wanted $10,000 and says he got it. General Frisbie endorsing his draft for that amount on John G. Carlisle. He claimed that he was on a spree the night before doing this, and said he never did anything wrong unless he was drinking. He deposited $9,000 in a bank at Monterey under another name.

THE LADIES WERE ATTENTIVE. Colyar said he was given a reception by Miss Frisbie, and gave her a box party at the theater. He failed to explain how he had escaped from Mexico, but said the matter had been satisfactorily settled. He returned here by way of Tampico, and New Orleans, arriving home Sunday morning. Checken -the frightful inroads of Scrofula and all blood-taints. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies and enriches the blood, cleanses the system of all impurities, and restores health and strength. It cures all disease arising from impure blood. Consumption is one of them. It's simply lung-scrofula. In all its earlier stages, the "Discovery" effects a cure. It's easy to see why. The medicine that masters scrofula in one part, is the best remedy for it in another. It is the best. It's warranted. It's the only blood and lung remedy that's guaranteed to benefit or cure, or the money will be refunded. No other medicine of its class does it. How many would be left if they did?

THE STATE ROAD.

THE SITUATION SHOWS NO MATER-IAL CHANGE.

The Zachry Resolution to Come Up Today. eting of the W. and A. Committee with the Governor Yesterday.

There is no change in the Western and Talk was plentiful yesterday and many were the views expressed upon the appa rent conflict between the lessees and the state, but the talk developed no new situstions and no new theories.

The Western and Atlantic committee of the house met Governor Northen for consultation; the minority of the senate finance committee made its report against the Zachry resolution-those were the developments yesterday.

Today the Zachry resolution will be acted upon by the senate. There will, in all probability, be a lively contest over this resolution, as the minority report of the finance committee shows a strong opposition to the commission idea.

The Western and Atlantic railroad commit tee has gone to work upon its field of duty.

There was a meeting of the committee yes in the private office of Governor Northen for a consultation with the governor The letter of Hon. Joseph E. Brown, president of the road, stating that it is the purpose of the present lossees not to pay the taxes on the property of the road in Tennessee, which are soon to fall due, and the one from President Thomas, the new lessee, stating that he expected to re-ceive the road free of all incumbrances, were read before the committee, and each member was called upon to give a full ex-pression of his views on the subject.

There was not much said. Only a few members gave expression of their opinions, and Governor Norhten himself had but little to say to the committee. The remarks of Governor Northen, however, signified his inclination to urge a speedy settle ment of the debt of the taxes to Tennessee for the year 1890, which amount to something

Governor Northen is in favor of bringing the matter to a satisfactory agreement. urges that the general assembly should take action on it at once and let the new lease go into the hands of the lessees free of this debt of taxes to Tennessee

And it generally seemed to be the sense of the committee that the state should take this step at once to protect its property.

The committee will meet the governor again

The Minority Report. The report of the minority of senate financo committee on the Zachry resolution reads as fo lows:

Mr. President: We, the undersigned members of the finance committee which has had under con-Mr. President: We, the undersigned members of the finance committee which has had under consideration "A resolution to create a commission to consider the claims between the lessees of the Western and Atlantic railroad and the state of Georgia," beg leave to submit to the senate as our reasons for dissenting from the majority report of the committee, which was favorable to the pasage of said resolution, the following, to-wit:

1. Because we are opposed to the sovereign state of Georgia entering into any arbitration. It is o. r. desire for the state to meet in candor and fairness all who make claims upon her and settle with them according to the strictest rules of business integrity, and not through the unsatisfactory methods of an arbitration.

2. Because If it be wise to appoint a commission.

integrity, and not through the unsatisfactory methods of an arbitration.

2. Because if it be wise to appoint a commission, as provided for in the resolution reported by the finance committee, its decision should not be binding and conclusive as to the rights of the parties. The experience of all governments has demonstrated the wisdom of having some appellate tribunal for the final adjudication of causes.

3. Because the people of Georgia elected this general assembly with the expectation that it would settle this question intelligently, and with equal fairness and justice to the state and the lossees, and in our judgment before it can so settle the question the general assembly must know what the issues are, and be placed in full possession of all the facts bearing upon those issues. That this may be bone we believe that a joint commission should be appointed and instructed to ascertain what issues, if any, exist between the state and the lessees, and collect the lacts thereon and report to this general assembly.

The price agreed upon is said to be 60 per cent of the capital stock valuation of $6,907,300, which is to be paid with Louisville and Nashville 4 per cent bonds, which are worth about 75 cents, though under the financial pressure at between 68 and 72 cents. This will give the Louisville and Nashville an air-line from Atlanta to Cincinnati over the foliowing roads: Marietta and North Georgia from Atlanta to Marietta; Knoxville Southern from Marietta to Knoxville; Knoxville, Cumberland Gap and Louisville from Knoxville to Middlesborough, Ky.; Louisville and Nashville from Middlesborough to Livingston, Ky.; Kentucky Central from Livingston to Cincinnati, a total distance, of 541 miles. This route is about forty miles longer than the old one via the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia from Knoxville to Jellico; but the time made will be about the same and the Louisville and Nashville is now entirely independent of the East Tennessee on the Atlanta-Cincinnati route.

The evening was very enjoyably spent in talking of their old firemen days. During the evening there was delightful music, both vocal and instrumental. Misses Emma and Mary Kershaw sang several songs

THE NORTH SIDE PARK. TODAY.

THE PEOPLE SEEM ANXIOUS TO

Mr. Hemphill's Plan to Give that Side holders Join with Dr. Spalding.

The north side park now seems an assured

Everbody nearly wants it. And the indications are that the park will be just where the Piedmont park now stands. Dr. Spalding's proposition has started the ball rolling that way.

It was Mayor-elect Hemphill, who first suggested the north side park, and in discussing it on the Peachtree horse car, his object was to certain the sentiment of those around him. No one knows better than Mr. Hemphill the absolute necessity of pure fresh air and the great benefit grown people as well as children derive from an hour or two passed each summer day in such a place as Piedmont park could be made.

Dr. Spaiding's proposition to surrender his stock in the Piedmont Park Association to the city struck Mr. Hemphill with force, and he will probably recommend the plan to the general council if the property is tendered by the stockholders.

ing place for the north side, such as the Piedmont park would give and shall do all in my power to get a park on that side.

Mayor Glenn is a big stockholder in the Piedmont Park Company and after reading the proposition of Dr. Spalding in yesterday's Constitution remarked:

"I am glad to see that plan suggested. It is a mighty good one and I will join Dr. Spalding. I am perfectly willing to transfer my stock along with the rest to to the city. We need just that kind of place in that side, and I am more than willing to give my part."

The more Dr. Spalding thinks of his proposition the more he likes it. In speaking of it yesterday, he said:

"The north side of the city needs a park, and needs it badly, and I consider the exposition grounds the best and cheapest piece of land for the purpose within the five-mile limit. The exposition would not be without a home, as the city could rent it to the company each year for the purpose. There is an indebtedness upon the land which would have to be assumed by the city in the event of a purchase."

Dr. Spalding stands by every word of the item concerning his position on the park question as published in Wednesday morning's Constitution.

Mr Forrest Adair, another exposition direction.

CONSTITUTION. Mr Forrest Adair, another exposition direc-tor, is also an enthusiastic advocate of the ex-position grounds as a site for a north side park. Said he yesterday:

There is no prettier or more suitable spot "There is no prettier or more suitable spot in Fulton county for the purpose. There are 200 acres of good land, with water advantages unexcelled. As the land stands now it is worth at the least calculation $800 per acre, and the money spent upon its cultivation as a park, no matter how much, would never be thrown away, as every dollar expended for the purpose would be equaled, if not exceeded, by the resulting rise in the value of the land.

the Piedmont Air-Line, Krog's engine struck shodslide in a rock out, when near the one hundred mile post, and capsized. No lives were lost, although things were pretty badly emaked into kindlingwood and old scrap-iron. At another time Krog came within an ace of running full speed with a full train upon a burning bridge. Pacollet creek, just beyond Spartanbarg, is a small, narrow stream, but over it stretched a very high and long combi-nation bridge. Some of the beams near the Hastily grabbing his red lantern he ran up the track in the direction of the oncoming train for about 400 feet, placed his light in the center of the track and hurried back to continue his work of quenching the now brightly listing fire. On came Krog at the rate of forty niles an hour. He was on the alert and saw the light, but supposed it was the watchman sleep on the track. Although he immediately anned on the air-brakes and reversed the struck the light and the train's momentum was not completely stopped until the fall length of the engine and tender was measured on the bridge. Here is one, which, to the matter-of-fact man, may seen a triffe fishy, but which Fred method we come for with a face as sober as a judge's. Ing met with all, or nearly all, of his accidents in the night time, but this one occurred a broad daylight.

It occurred near the eighty-six-mile post on the Atlanta and West Point road. The train, which consisted of a baggage and mail car, we coaches and a sleeper, was coming into dilanta at the rate of forty-five miles per lour. Some changes had been made in a cerain switch which had to be passed, and the relieves failed to properly fasten it upon leaving. The engine struck the switch and turned it, the rest of the train breaking loose and seering off upon a sidetrack parallel with the main line, on which the engine still ran. Krog, suspecting nothing, happened to glance back of him, and there beheld the train bowling along at a terrific clip, while he was going it alone. Then commenced an amusing dialong between Krog and the brakeman and conductor. In which shouts, saths and jeers were indiscriminately mixed, each side suspecting the other of rank carelessness. However, there was no time for words and Krog, realizing that he must get out of the way before the point was reached where the tracks joined again, crowded on every pound of steam, and the itery steed traveled faster than ever before in its existence. He got there all the same, and the lain, which had never slackened its speed, finally dumped itself into a meadow just at the linction point. The cars were piled pell-mell on top of each other, but out of the forty or more passengers not a person received so much as a single scratch.

more passengers not a person received so much as a single scratch.

Krog has inadvertently sent sixteen men to their long homes, every casualty happening at night. He once ran over a crazy man, a wild fellow who rounded the wood and subsisted on whatever he could pick up. Krog was not made aware of the mishap until, melling burning fiesh, he stopped the entine and investigated, his search revealing a human leg sizzling in the asli pan. He immediately ran the engine back, and found the body of the man three-miles which.

When nearing South Tiger one night, at which point there is a bridge 140 feet high, he was suddenly startled by seeing the watchman mn out of his sentry box, with his hand before his face, and attempt to clear the track. His house was on the left of the road, and he was obliged to station himself upon the right of the engineer's side of the cab. Krog shouted to him but an instant blore he had reached the other side the might extruck him and knocked him over 200 let. When picked up life was extinct, and exacely a sound bone was found in his body. It is supposed that he had been asleep in his box, and being partially awakened by the steam of the whistle, involuntarily attempted as act which he had performed many times before.

One cold night he knocked a sleeping tramp into a fire which he had built to warm himself, and the last seen of him he was making for the woods with his clothing all ablaze.

Fred struck a welthy man within sight of his own home on the Atlanta and West Point, the night. The man was on his way back from the town and had lain down on the track a sleep of the effects of numerous potations. In head was completely severed from the ody and Krog solemnly avers that the eyes alled and the lips worked for half an hour derivard.

He had not lain there fifteen misutes before he astounded the train hands by staggering to his feet and offering to fight any one present for the price of a glass of whisky. He was allowed to depart at the next station.

Krog got tangled up in a rear-end collision on the Atlanta and West Point, near Long Cove one dark night. He says that the word "telescope" is the most fitting term to apply to what happened that man can invent. Five cars went into four, and plowed their way so completely through that the two trains made one.

The most terrible accident in which Krog The most terrible accident in which Krog figured, occurred on the Western of Alabama, on the night of March 2, 1883. The rails spread when near the ninety-sixth mile post, and the engine, tender and four cars turned bottom upward. Krog was caught by his engine and severely crushed and injured internally. He has never been a well man since. He brought suit against the railroad, and after a hard fight, during which several courts were resorted to, the verdict of $15,000 which he obtained was sustained, and every cent was uitimately paid over. Krog netted $10,000, his lawyers receiving the remainder. Since the accident that drove him from the business he has been unable to work more than six months all told. In speaking of the event he says:

"I would give them back their $10,000 and $10,000 more on top of it could I but get in return the good, sound body I had one minute before I was turned over."

Krog has figured in seven or eight turnovers and three collisions, and has killed sixteen men on the track, and to his credit, be it said, in no single instance was the slighest blame attached to him. He was always the same careful, calculating, faithful worker, and were he in shape to go on the road again could at ach to the publication of his name in connection:

"I was handling the throttle on the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe in 1885," he said.

"I had a fast express and was nearing the town of Fort Worth one day in May of that year. We were behind our schedule and were pushing the old steam hoss for all we were worth. So fast were we traveling that the telegraph poles looked like the prongs on a fine tooth comb. We were just rounding a long curve, when suddenly I spied a little child playing on the track not over 500 feet ahead. We always carried a stout leathern lasso, made fast to the tender. Without more ado I grabbed that lasso, and with a single throw circled it around a telegraph pole. My act threw the engine and seven cars from the track and saved the little one—but killed 300 passengers."

passengers."
Passenger engineers, as a rule, consider themselves better off than as freight engineers, as one of them expressed it the other day:
"The speed of the train has nothing to do with the hability to accident. The freight engineer handles fifty cars where the other controls but five. A long, heavily-loaded freight train is always liable to break in two or more parts, in which event a wreck always results. Again, the freight man has nothing but a lot of green hands on top of the cars, who are always getting him into trouble. A passenger engineer has none of these difficulties to contend with. Another and the principal thing against the freight engineer, is that he is traveling on everybody else's schedule, while the passenger man has his own time-card, and, as a rule, finds no difficulty keeping within its limits.

General Debility.

General Debility.

One by one the great generals of the day have passed away, but there is one general who is ever with us—General Debility is his name. He is no respector of persons or of age or of sex. He imposes on the young, and in an unfair fight with old age, comes off victor. He is constantly battling with good heaith, and his delight is to make mankind miserable. His weapons are a same back, an aching side, weak kidneys, inactive liver, poor digestion, non-assimilation of food, extreme nervousness, universal lassitude, short breath, unnatural fatigue, etc. However, he is not to be feared. He is easily disarmed by a use of Dr. John He is easily disarmed by a use of Dr. John Bull's Sarsaparilla. When this remedy is used to counteract the attacks of General Debility, he is made to retreat every time. In fact, General Debility and Dr. Bull's Sarsaparilla cannot be in the same system at the same time. Try it, and you will soon get strong. Beecham's Pills act like magic on a weak

GRADY CORNER STONE

TO BE LAID ON THE 98D OF DE-

The First Anniversary of the Journalist's Death to See the Hospital Under Way. Colonel Watterson Invited.

The Grady hospital corner stone will be laid Tuesday, December the 23d. The first anniversary of Mr. Grady's death. And the ceremonies will be impressive and entertaining to all who knew the journalist for whom the hospital was named.

The entire programme for the day has not been arranged, but a committee composed of Mr. Grady's warmest friends is now working upon it.

The joint committee on the hospital convened in the mayor's office yesterday afternoon to start the work. Hon. Joe Hirsch, chairman, and Hon. Albert Howell, of the general council committee, Mayor Glenn, Hon. W. A. Hemphill, Dr. A. W. Calhoun, Captain J. W. English, Mr. Sarcuel M. Inman, Captain Robert J. Lowry and Captain Milledge of the citizens' mittee were in attendance.

Chairman Hirsch gave the committee a verbal report of the financial condition, show-ing that about $25,000 was needed to complete

"This, however," he remarked, "will not prevent us from laying the corner stone on Christmas day. The contractors are now down to hard work and are piling the basement up

Captain English urged the necessity of securing as quickly as possible the amount yet

"Let each one of us," he said, "work diligently to raise that money. I think if we were to get together and each one would select a few gentlemen to whom he could make an appeal, we could secure all we need."

"But do you think, Captain English," asked Mayor Glene, "that we could lay the corner stone Christmas day?"
"I think so, I know nothing in the way of it," answered Captain English.

"We ought to have some good speakers," said Mayor Glenn. 'That's true," remarked Captain English said Mayor Glenn.

'That's true," remarked Captain English "but we need one who will help us out. The best speech of that kind I ever heard was by the late Judge Lochrane. He had been invited to address a meeting at the opera house, and had been selected because it was thought that his eloquence would assure the people and make them open their pocketbooks. Judge Lochrane began by notifying the people that they would be called upon to give. Then he shoved his fingers into his vest pocket and, pulling out a roll of bills, said:

"'I'll just start it with this."

"This act was infectious, and the money was quickly raised. That's the kind of speaker we want."

"What's the matter with you for the orator, Tom?" asked Captain Lowry, addressing Mayor Glenn.

"Of course, as mayor, I shall have to make a short address," answered Mr. Glenn, "but I meant the orator of the day when I spoke. Governor Northen would be the man."

"Or," the mayor continued after a brief pause, "Henry Watterson."

"I doubt the wisdom of selecting Christmas day," romarked Major Hemphill.

"So do I," said Captain Lowry. "Everybody will want to be home on that day, and I doubt very much whether Mr. Watterson would accept on that day."

"It occurs to me," said Mr. Inman, "that Mr. Watterson would be the man. He and Mr. Grady were brother journalists, and he was one of Mr. Grady's warmest friends and greatest admirers."

"I suggest," remarked Captain Milledge, "that we first settle the day."

"Have you decided to have it on Christmas day?" asked Mayor Glenn of the chairman.

"That was the day on which Mr. Grady man.

"That was the dayl on which Mr. Grady was laid to rest," said Chairman Hirsch.
"I think another day would suit botter," remarked Mr. Inman.
"I move the stone be laid," said Major Hemphill, "on the 23d. That was the day on which Mr. Grady died."

The motion prevailed.
A committee was then appointed, with Mr. Hirsch as chairman to perfect the programme. It's composed of Major Hemphill, Mayor Glenn, Captain Milledge, Captain Lowry and Dr. Calhoun.
The committee at once issued an invitation to Hon. John S. Davidson, grand master of Georgia, to be present. Colonel Watterson was the choice of the committee for orator and Georgia, to be present. Colonel Watterson was the choice of the committee for orator and Major Hemphill was instructed to write the distinguished Kentuckian and ask him to be present.

Major Hemphill's letter to Colonel Watter

son read:

ATLANTA, Ga., December 10.—Hon. Henry Watterson, Editor Courier-Journal, Louisville, Ky. Dear Sir: The corner stone of the Grady hospital will be laid in this city on December 23d. I have been requested by the committee to write and ask you to make the address on that occasion. We know the nigh esteem in which you held Mr. Grady, and his friends will appreciate it if you will accept and make this address. Please wire me your reply. Yours truly,

W. A. Heatphill.

$5,000 buys the preticate lot on West Peachtree street, just beyond the new home of Hon. Frank P. Hice and Dr. Thurman's, 1002200 feet. High, shady and beautiful. The adjoining 100 feet can be had at same price. Liberal terms.

$50 a iront foot for ilsx190 feet to 20-foot alley on North avenue, half a block from West Peachtree and facing Peters' park. The car line connecting Peachtree and Marietta street lines is now being laid in front of this property. It is very choice and the price is low.

$5,750 is the price of one of the choicest homes on the North side. It is between the two Peachtrees, clevated in location and in a neighborhood as good as the lesst. The house is two stories, has eight rooms, two bath rooms, hall and side verandas. Every modern convenience. Stable and servant's house on the lot, which is 75x200 to a wide alley. We can arrange liberal terms and the place is sure to suit one seeking a north side home of its value. Will take pleasure in showing the property at any time.

$7,000 for one of the most centrally located vacant lots in the city, 55x80 to side alley. Can be built up to give great advantage. Capitalists seeking central property would do well to look further into this.

$15,000 for one of the most desirable homes in West End. Siz acres with large frontage on Gordon street and on the duminy line, making the entire tract very accessible. Sits well and has on it a beautiful grove. New 8-ro-m two-story frame residence, stable, carriage house and servant's house. Nice orchard and vineyard. Will take a well-located cottage not over $4,000 in value, in part exchange. Terms can be arranged easy on balance.

THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET. The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock

NEW YORK, December 10.—The stock market today was less active than that of yesterday, and the strength of yesterday's market was not heid, notwithstanding that call loans were casy throughout the day, never being more than 6 per cent, and reaching as low as 2. Time money, however, is not yet in the market, and fullyres among mercantile houses continue to be an s among mercantile houses continue to be anlist. The temper of the market at the opening this morning showed that the rise of yesterday was more to squeeze the shorts than anything else, and the demand for that purpose was entirely lacking, and while fortnightly settlements were reported as progressing very favorably on the other side, London was seller, and there was considerable pressure to sell what looked like long stocks in many of the leading shares. The losses at the opening extended to nearly 1 per cent, but the decline, after making considerably further progress, was checked and a full recovery occurred. The failure on the stock exchange of Hamilton Bishop was announced before noon, and had the effect of frightening off buyers, and the bears, seeing the state of affairs, started in to hammer the list with the effect of w.p.ng out the recoveries again. Some of the traders we, einclined to play for a rally after the downward movement had continued some time, but their efforts served to check the decline for a time, and later there was another attack, which, in the last hour, carried prices down to the lowest of the day. The Coal stocks were specially prominent in this later drop, and both Lackawanna and Delaware and Hudson lost 4 per cent from the best figures. Union Pacific and Rock Island, with the other Grangers, were also specially weak. The market finally closed active and weak, at about the lowest prices of the day. The final changes are not so large, however, and, while Lackawanna is down 3½, Union Pacific 2½, Jersey Central 2, Rock Island, and Colorado Coal each 1½, Sugar 1½, St. Paul, Louisville and Northwestern 1½ cach, and Atchison and Chicago Gas each 1 per cent, the rest are only fractionally lower. Sales, listed stocks, 235,000 shares; unisted, 10,000. list. The temper of the market at the opening this morning showed that the rise of yesterday was more the rest are only fractionally lower. Wire Telegram to Young Haas. NEW YORK, December 19.—London prices this morning showed a stronger market there, but no particular tendency to buy after the sharp advance of yesterday, and when it was found that much of yesterday's heavy buying was on recovering of shorts which removed just so much of the short interests from the market, a tendency to liquidation developed and the market sagged off, showing, at one time, a decline of from 1 to 2 per cent from yesterday's highest. Much of this was recovered before the close, and the feeling then was rather confident in spite of the excessive duliness and lack of disposition to trade. While the big shorts undoubtedly did some very large covering yesterday, the general short interest in the covering yesterday, the general short interest in the arket still continues heavy, and, with money becommarket still continues nearly, and, with money obcoming easier and prospects of an improvement in the railroad situation better, we will certainly have a further advance in prices. Reports from mercantile circles are more encouraging. The banks are treating their customers more liberally; the government has paid out $10,000,000 for bonds purchased; is disbursing 255,000,000 of pensions, and, with $4,000,000 in gold of its way from Europe, the condition of the banks shoul soon show a marked improvement.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular. NEW YORK, December 10.—[Special.]—Manchester spinners continue to purchase freely in Liverpool, taking today some 12,000 bales of cotton and causing an advance in the arrival market of fully 3 points. The pressure of cotton at the south is the only explanation of the free offerings of the near positions here in sufficient quantities to cause a decline from the opening of the market, and as our commission merchants are tomers by advances the premiums have widened to a point which repays well those who have the ready funds to take up the cotton tendered for deliveries. Some cheap purchases of low grades cotton are also reported to have been sold for delivery in January, at prices which net a profit on the transactions. Receipt at the ports are light, but those at the reported interio towns are comparatively full, and, while merchants are indisposed to follow the decline by pressing sales, no speculative support is apparent to induce purchases for a quick advance. The market closes dull with the e of yesterday unfulfilled.

NEW YORK, December 10.—The market today has been very disappointing to the bails. With an advance of 2-64d in Liverpool and ready sale of cotton bills at fair rates, an advance was in order here and greatly expected, but failed to materialize. With a fairly reduced short interest, however, and a lack of confidence the buying power seems quite limited, and we must look for a continuation of this condition of affairs for some time to come. The bureau report is of no significance, and had no bearing on prices.

CHICAGO, December 10.—The wheat market has been dull and firm all day, but no one seemed disposed to trade heavily, this being government report day, and the crowd seemed inclined to wait for what figures the report might bring forth. The most bullish thing received today was Eradstreet's report, which makes the stocks of wheat east of the Rockies show a decrease at a time of the year when an increase is generally expected. From the northwest comes engenerally expected. From the northwest comes on-couraging reports in the cash market, prices advanc-ing from 1 to 2 cents with easier money. Farmers' de-ilveries are not as heavy as they were on the same day last week. The feeling is growing that if the monen-tary situation improves, speculative articles of all kinds will move more in their natural channels. Quite a number of the traders expect a favorable report to-night on the acreage and condition of the growing winter wheat, but it had no effect other than keeping the market steady. We still adhere to our opinion that wheat is reasonably cheap, and that better prices are to be expected.

is not as high as yesterday. There is a great deal of talk around about what this or that big operator is going to do in corn, and the lesser lights have to wait going to do in corn, and the lesser lights have to wait for developments, having no other resource.

Provisions were quite firm and steady today; prices show little or no change. Stocks opened strong, but finally eased off. The troubles there do not seem to be entirely over yet. Interested parties seem to think that more gold should come to this country from Europe before confidence is fully restored in Wall street.

A NEW CHUBCH JOURNAL.

It Is Called The Missioner and Rev. R. S. ABBAUTIFUL WEDDING YESTERDAY

Barrett Will Be Editor.

It seems that Atlanta has not yet acquired her full quota of journals and newspapers.

The latest aspirant for literary and news honors—in the religious field—is called The Missioner, and Rev. Dr. R. S. Barrett, of St. Luke's cathedral, is its editor and proprietor. It will be a four-page felio, with five wide columns, and will be printed in large, easily readable type. The first number will make its appearance January 1st. The paper will be printed by the Franklin Publishing Company.

be printed by the Franklin Publishing Com-pany.

The Missioner will be devoted entirely to the interests of the Episcopal church in the south, and eminent Episcopalian divines from all parts of the south will be among its con-tributors. The paper will uphold liberal high-church principles, and as it becomes established and broadens its field it will be enlarged.

The late Bishop Beckwith was an enthusiastic supporter of the project, and, but a few days before his death, he had a talk with Dr. Barrett, in which he strongly advocated the great necessity for such a publication in this region.

great necessity for such a publication in this region.

That the new journal will be a success goes without saying, as it has ample financial backing from well-known wealthy members of the Episcopal church, and has promises of support from all directions in the south.

Dr. Barrett has had considerable experience in journalistic work. He was for two years editor of The Southern Churchman, and founded The Church News, for several years acting as its editor. Subscribers to The Missioner may rest assured that it will in every way prove worthy of its inception.

THE SUPREME COURT.

DECISIONS RENDERED WEDNES. DAY, DECEMBER 10, 1890.

Reported for The Constitution by Peeples and Stevens, Reporters of the Bacon v. Mayor and Aldermen of Savannah Illegality. Statutes. Municipal corpora-tions. Streets. Assessments. Constitutional law. Before Judge Falligant.

Chatham superior court. Bleckley, C. J .- 1. Where the same statute confers authority for issuing an execution to enforce the payment of an assessment made upon abutting property to defray the cost of improving the street on which property abuts, provides that the defendant shall have the right to file an affidavit denying that the whole or part of the amount for which the exe-cution issued is due, an affidavit which in one of cution issued is due, an affidavit which in one of its grounds sets forth such a denial in express terms as to the whole and every part, entitles the defendant to a trial upon all questions of law involved in the controversy. Acts 1884-5, p. 362.

2. The constitutional questions raised by the special grounds in the affidavit filed in this case, are virtually decided by Speer v. Athens (March term, 1889, pamphlet, 39), and the authorities therein referred to. 8 Lawy. Rep. 369.

3. A statutory power to improve any of the streets or any portion of the width of any street in the city, includes the power to improve either the whole or less than the whole of any street. One street may be divided into two sections, and one section improved with a double, the other with a single paved track. The property abuting on each section may be separately assessed for the cost of improving the section to which it belongs. For this purpose each section may be treated as a street. 2 Dill. Mun. Corp. 3799.

4. Authority to grade, pave, macadamize or otherwise improve for travel or drainage, is broad enough to comprehend all work and materials embraced in the assessment now in question.

5. Though the statute conferring the power to improve the streets con-templates that the power shall not be exercised until after the adoption of an or-dinance by a two thirds vote of the municipal body, requiring the improvement to be made and assessing two thirds of the cost thereof on body, requiring the improvement to be made and assessing two thirds of the cost thereof on the real estate abutting on each side of the street improved, the ordinance itself need not specify or designate the materials or the kind of material to be used in paving the street. The choice of materials may be made after the adoption of the ordinance, and by resolution or otherwise as the ordinance may provide.

6. Though the statute certainly contemplates that the tracks of street railroads and a space of two feet on either side thereof shall be paved or macadamized by the companies at their own expense, and abutting owners cannot be required to contribute to the cost thereof, yet a broad street may well admit of general improvement as a system separate and distinct from the macadamizing or paving of the street railroads located thereon. Where this is so, abutting owners may be required to contribute their proper part to defray the cost of general improvement, whether the special improvement required of railroad companies be made or not.

7. The statute requires no assessment to be made by ordinance save that which fixes the proportion of cost to be paid by the city as a municipality and by abutting owners respectively. Nor does it require preliminary estimates of amounts, or that amounts be otherwise ascertained and fixed by the ordinance. As the ordinance places the execution of its provisions in the hands of the committee on

As the ordinance places the execution of its provisions in the hands of the committee on streets and lanes, the ministerial duties of that committee would include the auditing of bills and ascertaining the actual cost of the work; also, the measurement of frontage and the approximance of two thirds of the whole cost portionment of two thirds of the whole cos amongst the several abutting owners according to the frontage of each. The legality and accuracy of these ministerial acts are open to question on a general affidavit of illegality to question on a general affidavit of illegality to the execution.

8. Where the statute authorizes the city

8. Where the statute authorizes the city government "to assess two thirds of the cost... on the real estate abutting on each side of the street or lane improved," and requires "the frontage" of intersecting streets and lanes to be assessed as real estate abutting on the street improved, the assessment may be apportioned amongst the several property-owners by frontage alone, without reference to the depth, superficial area or estimated value of the various parcels of abutting property. 39 Hun. 285. 39 Hun, 285.

9. The statute requiring the frontage of in-tersecting streets and lanes to be assessed as real estate, and that the mayor and aldermen shall be treated as owner and pay from the city treasury the just pro rate of cost for and according to said frontage, the cost of improv-ing interestions is not to be dealt with son according to said frontage, the cost of improving intersections is not to be dealt with separately, paid by the city and deducted from the total cost, but is to be included in such total cost when the apportionment is made amongst the various property-owners, and the city is to be charged just as any other owner with its pro rata share of the total cost according to frontage.

10. No part of a street fronts on the street of which it is a part. The intervening space between two paved tracks in the same street is no intersection, nor has the city any ownership of the same different from its ownership of the whole breadth of the street. The city is not chargeable with the margins of this intervening space as frontage.

11. The execution is not invalid because it purports on its face to issue for "proportion of

11. The execution is not invalid because it purports on its face to issue for "proportion of the cost of paving or otherwise improving Liberty street in said city with asphalt in front of and abutting on said real estate." The real estate must abut on the street, if the street is in front of and abutting on the real estate.

12. The words "time, place and manner of sa'e" do not embrace the newspaper in which the sale is to be advertised. Consequently $3356 (a) of the code does not require that sales for municipal taxes shall be advertised in the same newspaper in which sheriff's sales for city and county taxes are advertised.

any leave or order to issue a second process or extend the time for service.

3. Standing alone, a process is no legal authority to the sheriff to serve the defendant after the appearance term, and where the defendant appears at the first term after the actual service, and without pleading to the action moves to dismiss the same for want of due service, the motion should be granted.
